Physical Layer Deposition (PLD)
PLD is a thin film deposition technique. The process consists of depositing layers of atoms, inside a vacuum chamber, by a solid surface. The layering is produced by the evaporation of evaporant material (such as gold, titanium, etc.) from the substrate surface.

Advantages: High resistance to abrasion and scratching, much lighter than metallic coatings applied by firing.
Disadvantages: High resistance to abrasion and scratching, much lighter than metallic coatings applied by firing.

El PLD se usa de forma común en aplicaciones de la nanotecnología. El proceso consiste en depositar capas de átomos, en una cámara de alto vacío, sobre una superficie sólida. El recubrimiento se produce por la evaporación de un material evaporante, oro, titanio, platino, etc. sobre el material a recubrir.

Ventajas: Alta resistencia al desgaste y a la abrasión, son los materiales más ligeros por peso.

Para las aplicaciones de estos materiales deben utilizarse producciones no agresivas con pH neutro.

Los recubrimientos de diferentes colores.
